A rabbi is a spiritual leader or religious teacher in Judaism. One becomes a rabbi by being ordained by another rabbi, following a course of study of Jewish texts such as the Talmud.. The basic form of the rabbi developed in the Pharisaic and Talmudic era, when learned teachers assembled to codify Judaism's written and oral laws. The title "rabbi" was first used in the first century CE.

In other words, whereas the Torah prevented exploitation, Jesus demonstrated to us God's ultimate moral standards, which is: grace. "You have heard that it was said, 'You shall love your neighbor and hate your enemy.' But I say to you, Love your enemies and pray for those who persecute you," (Matthew 5:43-44)

Traditional Judaism has no specific doctrinal view of Jesus. However, since the traditional Jewish belief is that the messiah has not yet come and the Messianic Age is not yet present, the rejection of Jesus as Messiah has never been a primary theological issue for Judaism. Since the central belief of Judaism is the absolute unity and singularity of God, Judaism forbids the worship of a person
